Complaints & Compensation Policy

1. Introduction

PROLO is committed to providing reliable, high-quality shipping services and places customer satisfaction as a top priority.
This Complaints and Compensation Policy has been prepared to clarify the procedures for receiving and handling complaints, as well as the compensation claim process in cases of shipment loss, damage, or delivery delays.

Definitions .2

Customer	The beneficiary of services provided by PROLO
Service Contract	The agreement between the customer and PROLO within the scope of the provided service.
Claim	A request submitted by the customer for compensation in cases of damage, loss, or incorrect/delayed delivery.
Notification	Informing PROLO of any service-related observation through official communication channels.
Delivery Delay	Exceeding the announced delivery timeframe
Damage	Any harm to the shipment or its contents affecting usability or value
Loss	A shipment that was lost during transportation or delivery and could not be located

3. Complaints & Claims Handling Policy

PROLO has established a dedicated department to manage customer complaints and claims.
All complaints and observations related to service quality or other matters are received and processed according to approved procedures.
Customer data confidentiality and privacy are strictly maintained and are not shared with any third party except as required by applicable regulations.
The complaints and claims management system is reviewed periodically to ensure compliance with internal policies and continuous improvement.

4. Complaint / Compensation Claim Submission Process

- Complaints or compensation claims may be submitted through Customer Service or the Account Manager.
- Claims for damaged shipments must be submitted within 24 hours from the delivery date.
- Claims for lost shipments must be submitted within 10 days from the expected delivery date.
- PROLO reviews complaints and claims within five (5) business days after receiving all required documents, including:
- Customer name
- Shipment tracking number
- Detailed description of the complaint
- Supporting documents and photos of the shipment condition
- Multiple communication channels are available to keep the customer informed of the claim status.
- If compensation is approved, it will be paid to the shipper, not the recipient.

5. Compensation Terms & Conditions

- Compensation does not cover cases resulting from force majeure, product sensitivity, improper packaging by the customer, or any factors beyond PROLO's responsibility.
- Compensation is calculated based on the type of damage and according to the contractual agreement with the customer.
- PROLO reserves the right to reject any complaint or claim that is incomplete or submitted after the specified timeframe.
- If delivery is delayed by more than 7 business days, compensation will be limited to shipping fees only.
- PROLO is not responsible for damage caused by incorrect addresses or contact numbers provided by the customer.
- Shipments packaged inappropriately for the nature of the goods are excluded from compensation.
- Damage resulting from product characteristics that require special handling will not be compensated unless disclosed in advance by the customer.

6. Official Emails for Complaints & Compensation

Compensation requests must be sent to one of the following official email addresses:

cs1@adwar.com.sa
reem@adwar.com.sa

7. Conclusion

PROLO is committed to delivering outstanding service and handling complaints efficiently and professionally.
We strive to ensure customer satisfaction and trust through clear and effective procedures.
Thank you for choosing PROLO we look forward to serving you always.

PROLO
Professional Logistics